

Short Bio

Robert Kennedy III wants to live in a world where people are no longer afraid to confidently tell their stories...and they can also eat Reese's Peanut Butter cups for every meal without any repercussions.

His work as a keynote speaker and trainer in the areas of leadership, business communication and video has led him to work with organizations such as AARP, Barnes & Noble, Social Security Administration, Panda Restaurant Group, T-Mobile, and UNCF as well as appearances on Fox, CW and other networks.

As a licensed real estate agent in the state of Maryland, he has spoken for the National Association of Realtors, state conventions like the Michigan Realtors Association annual convention and other state associations and brokerages.

He is involved in his community through various boards including leading the parent association for his children's high school, coaching high school baseball and running the Crichlow-Kennedy Foundation with his wife.

He is a professional member of the National Speakers Association and the host of their Speakernomics podcast...

Ladies & Gentlemen, Robert Kennedy III

